then read what you were just texting me

then read your text afterward again repeat this cycle and get back to me when you say to yourself "oh"

Dude, I still think I'm right

Let's circle back tomorrow morning

5/23/24, 3:58 PM

the math is right. correct  $51-25 = $26$ . i wasn't disagreeing with that.

here's where the confusion came from...

your text. the one that proposed the bet to begin with stated the following:

"...if the Red Sox win, I ( as in you, Willie Poole) owe you (as in me, Stephen) $26."

*** stop here,

go read your prop bet text.

return***

now, let's continue shall we?

in the same exact text, as prop bet texts always go, part two of the prop bet text proceeded as follows (mind you, also riddled with errors):

"if Tampa Bay Rays win, you (as in Steve) owe me (as in Willie)$20."

the reason i question whether it was $20 was because i lost but wasn't tracking scores or our tally your text after the game concluded was that i (as in steve) owed you (as in Willie) $25.

in haste i didn't dig in, just questioned. perhaps you see why!

$25 did not match $20 from the text.

now, the verdict. i will accept your accidental correction at -$25

but you better clean up your prop bets, son bc y'all had enough errors to void you little pussy fart bet
