I'll give you a buzz back

Ok

Was Jean at dinner with us that last time we were there?

No don't believe so

Oh ok. I couldn't remember but I think you're right

Why do you ask

She's helping me with Santa Clara and I almost said something about the dinner but second guessed if she was even there so I didn't say it. I just thought it was weird I couldn't remember

Not a big deal

Dave has absolutely nothing going on next week and they're making me fly to Baltimore on a few days notice because he said he's busy. This is another phish concert I guarantee it.

damn man. Yea his attitude and the team attitude is all getting worse. Wish it wasn't so. What can we do to change things?

I really dont know but I'm super pissed off because not only did I slack you guys multiple times to see if we had any idea but I reached out to Jeff and Val several times, neither of which ever even answered me. I'm the head coach of my daughters hockey team this year and the first practice is next week so I was hyper aware of the timing since none of us had any idea. There just needs to be some communication as we constantly get left wondering what's going on

Like how could they put up the money for that event but never even consider who was staffing it until less than a week before

One thing Neil did well was organize around events from a sales perspective. We have a huge hole there. I've had OOO on my calendar for 12th/13th for some time now and I've learned that if you don't have blocks of time blocked off on your calendar they will only look at your Paylt meeting schedule and ask you based on that. I still got put on the spot on the Friday call but told Jeff and val from day one I wasn't going to be able to go, and I'm traveling the week before and week after aamva. So I didn't get tapped or pressured to go after I said no on team call. I dunno man. Shit show. I'm bout ready to bounce

I can't stand the feeling of waking up lately knowing I've got the short end of the stick, kill myself, have little power to change anything here nor control over what I may or may not get paid

I feel like a chump just taking it from behind

It's definitely a new feeling for me to have everyone nod and smile when you're saying something but realizing right after that no one actually heard you

Curious what you meant by Charmed the shit out of MP. How'd you reach out? You talk to him?

I was kind of joking about the charming part. I said the good news is that his whole RMD team gets along really well and collaborates but the bad news is that it has turned us into an unofficial labor union and it was my turn to reach out. I just asked to get that call back on the books and that we were all anxious to get this sorted since we feel good about our pipeline and don't want things up in the air when they start closing.

It combines his strange tendency to joke about serious stuff but also emphasizes that there has been several touches from several people so it's overdue

Yea that's a fair play

Probably landed same time as Phil hitting him up

Could this possibly be some kind of power play by him?

What a weird play if so. Like why

I don't know. I guess it doesn't really make sense in any context now that I think about it

You see the invite from Jeff for 11am PST? Just making sure

Delivered

I did like 5 minutes before and thought it was an important update on a deal Jeff has been a part of them when I saw the attendee list I figured we were getting a new boss

But it was neither
